

Airport not community

Q. You've said that Ribbonfarm and Refactor Camp are 'more like an airport than a community'. Can you unpack this?

A. 'People pass through and maybe take some souvenirs with them. I like it that way. A place where people influenced and were influenced for a while. It feels good to see all the interesting things people have done after passing through this airport. I'd say several hundred people transited through this airport over about a decade, as more than just readers. These days I've gone back to mostly being a one-person show and the airport is sort of closed, but this more social chapter was a big part of the story.'

Date: 2023-10-01
Words: 5
Time to read: 1 min

Newer

Older

1 Oct 2023
Hockney cardigan

30 Sep 2023
Modern coffee

Russell © 2022-2025

Tags Archive RSS feed

Made with Montaigne and bigmission 