

Simon Amstell

What makes you want to be so vulnerable on stage?

It's not interesting to me unless I feel scared to say it out loud. I feel like I'm called to free myself, and the people who are watching, of shame. I don't want to come off stage thinking I wasn't brave enough to say something because then I'm not free. I'm free now! You can't get me because I've said everything! That's the point of the whole thing.
